

For Pepin and Parkman lines, we would like to see two takes:

1. Speak all Pepin and Parkman lines in French while acting in character.
2. Speak all Pepin and Parkman lines in English with a French accent while acting in character.

Washington and Gist are finishing up dinner waiting on Commandant Legardeur to arrive with response to the letter. They have been waiting a while and are trying to hold their tongue, but tensions are rising. They are getting more and more uneasy with the situation.

Meanwhile the two French soldiers are having liberal doses of wine and encouraging Washington and Gist to drink more as well. They are purposely SPEAKING in French in order that the two cannot understand them.

The French LAUGH at their expense.

Washington gets more and more agitated and uneasy.

ENSIGN PEPIN

Voulez-vous boire encore?

SUBTITLES

Would you like to drink some more?

ENSIGN PARKMAN

Le garçon sera sous la table
après une gorgée!

SUBTITLES (CONT'D)

The boy will be under the table after a sip!

ENSIGN PARKMAN

Le culot de ces intrus.

SUBTITLES (CONT'D)

The nerve of these trespassers.

ENSIGN PEPIN

C'est pas mal, n'est-ce pas?
Bien meilleur que la bière
anglaise que vous buvez.

SUBTITLES (CONT'D)

It is quite good, no? Much better than the English ale you drink.
